BOY SCOUTS RETURN FROM OLD BALDY SNOW HIKE AGLOW WITH ENTHUSIASM

Best Hike Ever Is the Verdict of the Comrades of the Verdugo Hills Council, Back Again Unscathed From the Open

THIRTY-SEVEN BOY SCOUTS MAKE THE TRIP

Divided Into Two Parties, the Youngsters Climb the Mountain Peaks and Enjoy Life in the Open for Three Days

"Great!" "The best hike we ever had." "Wish we could have stayed a week!"—are only a few of the enthusiastic replies of the 37 Boy Scouts and Scout Leaders of the Verdugo Hills District, who returned Thursday evening from a three days' Xmas snow hike to Camp Baldy.

When interviewed this morning, Scout Executive Harold Benner, who had charge of the party, said that the Scouts behaved themselves well, that there was no trouble with discipline and that there were no accidents other than a few scratches here and there which were received by some of the boys while hiking and playing games.

"We divided the party into two groups," he continued. "One, the Daniel Boone Troop, which consisted of the older scouts under the supervision of Robert Searle, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 1, Glendale, and the other of which I took charge was called the Kit Carson Troop. The younger scouts were in this group.

"We left Glendale in a big bus at 8 a. m., on the 26th of December, and reached the Toll House in the San Antonio Canyon three hours later. From there the scouts hiked the four and one-half miles to Camp Baldy, which they reached about 1 p. m.

"Upon arriving at the camp the scouts were taken to the Hotel Dormitory where they were assigned beds for the next two nights. The balance of the afternoon was spent by them in seeing the camp, signaling and playing games. A kangaroo court was the cause of considerable merriment the first night in camp, which ended in the prisoner being exonerated of all charges and the prosecution being arraigned for contempt of court, felony, and all but murder. Just at the judge pronounced sentence the prisoner made a dash for escape and of course a big 'man-hunt' followed. The elusive prisoner (no more) succeeded in eluding his would-be captors and every body trooped off to bed 'dead tired.'

"Breakfast was served in the community kitchen and dining room and thereafter the older scouts started for the summit of 'Old Baldy,' a very difficult trip indeed, especially as they were the first to attempt it since the last fall of snow. They succeeded, after considerable hard work and many scary feats in crossing the narrow and it is believed would have made the top but the hour was growing late and they had received strict orders to return to camp before dark. The Kit Carson Troop left camp about a half hour later than the older scouts and their object was to reach the snow line via Ice House Canyon. After what seemed about a million miles, especially to some of the younger scouts, they reached the side of the canyon which was literally covered with snow that had fallen several days before. Now then came the real enjoyable part of the trip with old Mother Snow furnishing the sport. Snowball fights were promptly started with everybody getting his share of the icy stuff. A dandy slide was soon discovered and round of shooting down the side of the mountain like lightning. "As this became tame to the groups would go down together like on the bob sleds. Of course everybody soaked through and through with the wet snow but it surely was a hilarious time for everyone. While in the midst of a snow ball fight the scouts were joined by Assistant Scoutmaster H. B. Roberson of Troop 2, Glendale, who came up to spend the day accompanied by Arthur Barton, the senior patrol leader of his troop and Carter Both, the mascot. Returning to the camp the scouts changed for dry clothing which they had brought along. That evening they assembled in the dormitories and a bag of candy was put up to be presented to the scout telling the best serious story. It was won by Scout Clarence Hilton of Troop 2, Burbank, who told the famous story of Jean Valjean.

Thursday morning bright and early some of the Daniel Boone scouts raided the Kit Carson Troop with the result that several perfect good branches were not to be found by their owners. This terrible catastrophe was finally righted and then the fellows joined in a big capture, the flag game, which had to be called off before either side could win because of a rain and snow storm.

"Right after dinner the scouts left Camp Baldy in time to reach the Toll House by 3 p. m., where they were met by a big bus which conveyed them back to Glendale.

Forty Attend the First M. E. Party

The high school department of the First Methodist-Episcopal Sunday school gave a progressive party last night. About 40 were present. The members of the department went in cars to the homes of Miss Julia Hull, Miss Bertha Brown, Miss Florence Hamilton and Miss Marian Grey. The hostesses at the different houses planned a game and entertainment for their house. At the Grey home refreshments were served.

A. R. EASTMAN IS CALLED EASTWARD

COURT OF PEACE IS JUDGE LOWE'S DOMAIN

Little Doing in the Police Court As the Year Closes

Virtue appears to be the portion of Glendale. Judge Lowe smilingly reports nothing doing—no new offenders who have been brought before him.

The records of the police department show a complaint from Mrs. J. Melzer of 630 North Glendale that her house had been entered but nothing of value taken.

Mrs. P. H. Hudson reports the disappearance of a short-tailed grey cat. She was referred to the pound man. When the sergeant was asked if the dog catchers took up cats too, he glumly responded that they could "if they wanted to," and that's that.

Judge Lowe has two cases on for next Wednesday. One the preliminary hearing of Druggist Harris at Glendale avenue and Acacia who has been charged by Townsend Clark with threatening him in an angry manner with a deadly weapon. The druggist's story is that the 7-year-old son of Clark got hold of a dollar and came to his store and purchased toys with it. Clark came back with the boy stating he had been forbidden to spend money in that way and asked the druggist to take the toys back, which he refused to do because they were damaged. Then Clark declared he would chastise the boy in the presence of Harris and proceeded to do so, the druggist protesting and driving him to the street by flourishing the weapon.

Harris has been criticised for not swearing out a warrant instead for disturbance of peace on earth good will to men at the holiday season.

The second case to come before Judge Lowe is on a felony charge lodged against one Heox for issuing a worthless check to Mrs. Cook, the confectioner.

OAKMONT GOLF CLUB TO MEET JAN. 2

Members to Prepare for $50,000 Home Construction

At a meeting held this morning at the office of the Oakmont country club in the Monarch building, plans for the proposed club house were discussed and officers to be elected at another meeting to be held Tuesday at the San Gabriel country club and inspect the buildings with a view to incorporating desirable features in the Oakmont club house.

It is expected that a permit for the new club house will be taken out by the middle of January as two contracting firms are now figuring on the plans. It is to cost $50,000, to be of the English type of architecture and 300 feet in length, having all departments under one roof which will make for economy in operation.

The plans call for a dining room that will seat 250, and a men's grill room with a capacity for 115.

As soon as a permit is issued work on the golf links will begin in the expectation that they will be ready for use by August.

Present at the meeting were A. L. Baird, Dr. E. H. Parker, Jack Huntley, V. M. Hollister, Harry S. Webb, S. B. Morse, Harry Hall, Spencer Robinson and H. M. Parker.

PEACOCK TO SYMBOLIZE CIVIC PRIDE OF CITY TO FORM GLENDALF FLOAT

L. W. Chobe Reveals Design Which Will Exemplify Community in the Tournament of Roses to Be Held in Pasadena

BEAUTIFUL CREATION TO STEP FORTH

Randolph H. Bancroft Will Drive Gorgeous Creature Through Streets, Dragging Blossom-Dripping Throne on Which Trophies Will Repose

The design of the float to be entered by Glendale in the Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena on New Year's day is a matter of great interest to the residents of this city as that day approaches. Though Glendale is not conceded, it has justifiable pride in the trophies which have been won in the Rose Tournaments of past years, and also of this city. Therefore it has chosen a peacock, symbol of pride the world over, to represent her this year.

The peacock struts forth, stepping slowly and with dignity, as a real peacock should. His topknot is like a blue crown and head is held proudly erect, with eyes looking down upon the crowd. His soft blue breast and brown wings are slightly puffed with pride, and his majestic tail, half spread, trails gracefully behind him. All of his coloring is an exact copy from nature. An extraordinary feature of the float is that the wings of the peacock are so arranged as to hide the Fordson tractor which furnishes the motive power and carries the weight. This float is different from any entered in previous years, not only in design, but in that it is not built on a truck, but directly over a tractor, which is being loaned for the occasion through the courtesy of Jesse Smith.

The peacock is driven by a charming spirited little boy, Randolph H. Bancroft of 127 East Lolita avenue, who keeps him well in hand with reins of smilax. The boy sits in a blue toy wagon with range wheels, which the peacock draws. The wagon is covered with 2000 blue cornflowers and the disk wheels are made solid of marigolds. The boy's suit harmonizes with the colors of the wagon. In his hand he holds a Cecil Brunner rose branch for a whip. In the wagon, amidst a load of 100 deep red roses, are pedestals upon which rest the beautiful silver cups which have been awarded Glendale for previous entries.

L. W. Chobe, who has charge of the designing and construction of the float, in telling of the size of the float states that the peacock measures fourteen feet from the head to the ground and that the total length of the peacock is thirty feet. The float will be fifty-two feet long. The tail of the peacock is spread nine feet and has a twenty-one foot extension without support. There is a nine foot extension of body and each wing measures fifteen feet in length.

In the breast of the peacock 10,000 blue cornflowers and fifty bunches of violets are used. The wings are of Oregon grape. The foundation for the tail is of heather, the spots being of cornflower, violet and maidenhair fern. Three hundred bunches of violets are used. The back is of yellow pom-poms, mingled with smilax. The beak and feet are of heather and the eyes are of marigolds, surrounded by white carnations. A thousand white carnations are used for lettering and the greenery is furnished by 100 bunches of maidenhair fern, 100 bunches of asparagus fern and 100 strings of smilax.

The foundation for the float has been completed. L. W. Chobe is desirous of a large crew of volunteers to offer their services in preparing the flowers and the placing of them on the float tonight and Sunday. The float is at 120 South Maryland avenue.

According to the usual custom, Occidental College is to enter a float New Year's Day in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade. A very unique idea has been worked out this year, and it is expected that this float will meet with much favor. In the center there will be a giant "O," the Tiger emblem. Six pretty and popular girls and six of the prominent college men will figure in the float. Each will be costumed to depict some certain phase of college life.

Among the girls there will be the tennis girl, the society belle, the college graduate, the scholar, and others. Of course, among the men there will be the football hero, the student body man, the fraternity man, and of a certainty, the regular fan, who boosts everything in the school. That the parade will draw a generous proportion of the students to Pasadena is an assured fact.

DISTINGUISHED JESUIT AT THE HOLY FAMILY

Rev. Nicholas Bell of Loyola, to Assist Father O'Neill on Sunday

Rev. Nicholas Bell, S. J., vice-president of Loyola college, in Los Angeles, will assist Rev. Father James S. O'Neill of the Holy Family Catholic church at the Sunday services, and also on New Year's day, which is observed as a church day. Rosary and benediction at 7:45 o'clock in the evening. Everybody welcome. This same program will be followed for the Monday services.

Rev. Patrick Dunne, who was appointed recently by the bishop to assist Father O'Neill, has been ill since coming here, not having recuperated from an attack of influenza which he suffered some time ago, and has not been able to take part in the church work.

HELP WANTED FOR GLENDALF'S FLOAT

L. W. Chobe, who has charge of designing and constructing the float to be entered by Glendale in the Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena on New Year's Day, has issued a call for volunteers to report at 120 South Maryland avenue Saturday night and Sunday to assist in preparing the flowers ready to place them on the float, and also for helpers to place the flowers. The float is to leave Glendale at 3 o'clock Monday morning.

CRESCENTA WATER COMPANY MOVES TO MONTROSE

Takes Offices in the State Bank Building at That Place

LA CRESCENTA, Dec. 30.—The office of the Crescenta Mutual Water company will be moved to the Montrose State bank at Montrose, on the second day of January, 1923. Mr. M. Mills, the efficient secretary and treasurer of the company, found it necessary to resign on account of other activities. The offer of the Montrose State bank was found to be the most satisfactory and economical proposition available to the company. After the second day of January, 1923, all bills will be issued by and payable to the Montrose State bank, all subscriptions to stock, orders for meters, applications for pipeline extensions, etc., should be made at the bank. The bank will act only as a bookkeeping and collecting agency for the company, and will be in no way active in the management of the actions of the directors, officers or employees. All complaints as to service, bills, leaks, etc., should be made in person to Supt. E. L. Rider at the pumping plant on Glenwood street, or in writing to Mr. Rider in care of bank.

NORA WING WINS SANTA CLAUS PRIZE

Solves the Difference Between the Press Kris and Kingles

The many special features of the Glendale Daily Press have attracted a great deal of attention among the many thousands of readers who daily read the paper.

Perhaps no special feature has attracted more attention or interest than the recent Santa Claus contest which enabled the Press readers to try their skill from the standpoint of comparison.

In a large edition of the Press nearly one hundred pictures of Santa Claus were used in the advertisement of business firms in Glendale. There was an original Santa Claus in the story, which gave instructions as to making comparisons. Hundreds of people hurried themselves to find the original Santa Claus in the story, and it required many hours time for our staff artist, Mr. Jeckel, to determine the four winners. But after so long a time he has figured out the lucky ones, and here they are.

Nora Wing, 410 East Raleigh, Glendale, was the first to send in the correct solution to the contest, and also to give a story worth while on, "Why it pays to read advertisements before shopping." Her story appears elsewhere in this paper, and is worth reading. She will call at the Daily Press office and get her prize of two dollars.

Frieda Davis, 208 West Colorado, Glendale, came second in the list of prize winners.

Mary E. Kirby, 409 East Doran, also won a prize of $2 for her efforts in the contest. Mary is only twelve years old, but she reads the advertisements in the Glendale Daily Press to find the best buys and keeps tabs on the stores that advertise regularly. Mary believes in reading the advertisements in the Glendale Daily Press and says her papa saves money by so doing.

Kennick Ellis, age ten years, won the fourth prize of $2 in the Santa Claus contest. He says he reads the advertisements in the Press because they tell him where his money will buy the most. Ellis is right.

Why It Pays to Read Advertisements Before Shopping

BY NORA WING,
410 East Raleigh.

"Oh dear," said Mabel's mother, "I am completely worn out. I have been on the go since early morning, and I think I have been in nearly every store in Glendale, but haven't yet found what I wanted."

Mrs. Brown, from next door, laughed and said, "Why, I just came from town and I am almost through my shopping."

"Then how do you do it? You are as calm as can be, looking as if you had just gotten dressed while I—look as if I had been to a bargain sale."

"Why, my dear, don't you ever read the papers—the advertisements especially."

"I must confess," replied Mabel's mother, "that I don't read them very often. I don't seem to have the time. I just decided what I wanted and then started to town to see if I could find it."

Mrs. Brown picked up a copy of the Glendale Daily Press and turning to the advertisements said, "Here's where I go all through and find the stores that carry what I want and where I can get the most for my money. The advertisements also help you choose what to get for your Aunt Abby who is so terribly cranky and fussy, or someone else you have a time buying for."

Mabel's mother had brightened up considerably by the time Mrs. Brown had finished talking and remarked cheerfully, "Well, I guess I won't have so much trouble doing my Christmas shopping after all."

And the last view Mrs. Brown had of her on her way home, she was bending over the paper and jotting down the names of the different stores and the articles she wanted to buy there.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

BY E. R. WAITE,
Secretary,
Shawnee Oklahoma Board of Commerce

THAT the prosperity of a community depends upon the extent of its commercial activity.

THAT there is often a vast difference between what men honestly intend to do, and what they actually do.

THAT they honestly intend to do their share to help to make their city a bigger and better city.

THAT when the times comes, some of them instead of helping, play dead and leave it to the other fellow.

THAT the biggest business of a city is nobody's business. Your Chamber of Commerce takes care of it.

THAT the pages of your newspapers contain a mass of information for every citizen; they should carefully study them.

THAT your papers contain much in each issue that has a bearing on the business field, and should be of the utmost interest and importance to the individual who wishes to be successful in business.

THAT your city is no place for the man who is always waiting until tomorrow to grab the opportunities offered him.

THAT your business men should have constant capacity to understand the needs of the buying public, and should daily endeavor to be just, honest, fair and courteous in all business dealings.

OLDSMOBILE WINS ON RELIABILITY AND ECONOMY

So Reports C. H. Hunter of Local Agency on H. V. Henry's Say So

The question always comes up in talking about automobiles, "What is the cost of operation and upkeep? The Oldsmobile is fast establishing a name for reliability and economy," says C. H. Hunter, of the Oldsmobile agency. "The following letter is from Mr. H. V. Henry, sales manager of the Eagle Glen Heights, owner of an Oldsmobile Four:

"Mr. C. H. Hunter, Oldsmobile agent, Glendale, Cal.
"Dear Sir—Referring to your inquiry relative to service given me by the Oldsmobile Four, which I purchased through your agency last April, will advise that I am eminently well satisfied with the service given me by this machine. I have driven it over 10,000 miles, 2500 of which was through the High Sierras, and have not had an adjustment of the engine. I average better than 20 miles to the gallon of gas and have a gallon of oil to the 1000 miles, and about a pint of water to the 1000 miles. During the month of August I made a trip up the coast to San Francisco, going into the Big Basin on the way, thence up the Lincoln Highway to Lake Tahoe, thence over the mountains to Gardnerville, Nev., thence back to Glendale via Mono Lake, Silver Lake and Mojave Desert. I had four people and over 300 pounds of baggage and camp equipment along, and maintained the limit of speed allowed by law, despite which I averaged 22½ miles to the gallon of gas for the entire 1325 miles, used three pints of oil and only one quart of water, which was pretty fair. Am glad to boast the 'Olds A,' as well as the fine spirit of the agency."

"With kindest regards, I am,
"H. V. HENRY."

CORNER STONE ON SPARR HEIGHTS IS A SYMBOL

Signifies Intense Personal Interest of Owners in the Community

So long as one stone of the community center in Sparr Heights remains upon another the act of the Sparr Heights company in donating this feature to Glendale will be remembered. The act of the members of this company is one that will go down in Glendale history. It is something that may be pointed to by Glendaleans as truly a public spirited act on the part of the donors.

In the construction of that building the owners of Sparr Heights have nothing in mind except the good of Glendale. They are interested in this city and in her progress. They will back to the limit anything that is for the best interests of the community as a whole. In the construction of this center building these men are not thinking in the terms of dollars and cents. They are thinking of the moral and artistic welfare of the residents of Glendale and vicinity. This is their donation to the up-building of this city.

This is the symbol of the corner stone laid Sunday.

The event of the laying of the corner stone of this community center building was one that will long be remembered by those who were in attendance. There was good music, excellent speeches, a big crowd, refreshments, and all that, but the most noteworthy feature of the entire occasion was the wonderful get-together, close-knit spirit that was evidenced on every hand. From Chairman Walters down to the fellow who arrived after the program was all over this spirit was shown.

John S. McGroarty, that wonderful gentleman, in the quiet, restful style that is all his own, gave just a glimpse of the days of long ago. He told of his escape from the city to the green Verdugo hills. He also spoke briefly of the present and the future, his entire address being interspersed with amusing stories and intimate happenings.

"Most all men and some women want to live as long as they can," said this wonderful man. "I don't know what heaven is like. Some people say it is much grander than this earth, but as for me, I would be perfectly satisfied if they would let me live in this wonderful valley forever."

"Many years ago I lived in Los Angeles, but that was before the jazz got to be the style. When that came in, I left. The city got too full of people, and it became permeated with an unholy smell. I believed that if you want to live long you will have to go to the hills—so I came to these wonderful Verdugo hills."

"But gradually the cities are closing down on me. First came Glendale, which is now a roaring city, and now another city is in the making at Sparr Heights. If the new city which is destined to grow on the soil on which we now stand proves to be the kind they tell us it is going to be, everything will be well, for there are good cities and bad cities, but if it proves to be otherwise, we simply will have to see what is on the other side of those wonderful hills to the north."

"When I came to Glendale there was no singing mayor in that place. It was too small for that. Mayor Robinson has told you that a few years ago there were only three people and a goat in Tuljuna."

Folks, when I first saw Glendale the only thing in that place was a goat.

"Well can I remember the first day I ever saw this valley. Los Angeles grew to be too much of a roaring town for me, so I set fall up into the San Fernando valley. I had heard of the Verdugo canyon and I wanted to see it, so I headed up this way. I hadn't gone far before I knew home. All that remained for me to do was to select the site of my home. This was done and I have been here ever since.

"Cities are all right if they are right. If you must have cities let us pray God that they be good cities, filled with kindly, happy folks. If that is the kind of a town you are going to build here, may God speed its construction. I believe that on the place where we now stand Glendale will see an edifice rise that will mean happiness to many people. May this wonderful valley progress. May the rash come and may the sun kiss it and may it grow and prosper."

WYANDOTTE BLUE BLOODS ARRIVE

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Root, of 425 West Lomita avenue, have just received a shipment of White Wyandotte chickens from the officially trap-nested strain of White Wyandottes, winning in the tenth national egg-laying contest at the experimental station at Mountain Grove, Mo. These birds are out of the flock that won $30 in cups and $58 in cash prizes and a high pen. Mr. Root's aim is to produce utility and laying fowls of the highest class for the small back-lotter and rancher, breeding hens that lay and produce meat as well. These chickens came from the famous poultry farm of A. D. Walker of Memphis, Mo.

Among the Glendale residents who were invited guests to attend the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bajer of Gramercy Place, Los Angeles, formerly of Glendale, in celebration of the 21st birthday anniversary of their son Frederick Jr., were Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Nash, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Nash, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Nash.

Truths in Epigram

A strong memory is generally coupled with an infirm judgment.—Montague.

There is a vast deal of hypocrisy in the affected admiration of nature.—Lytton.

The mind profits by the wreck of every passion, and we may measure our road to wisdom by the sorrows we have undergone.—Lytton.

THE HARDING AMENDMENT

President Harding desires to have added to the constitution an amendment to prevent evasion of taxes as now practised by many big corporations. They do not, in the instances in mind, do this in secret, but under the sanction of the law, as construed by the supreme court. Openly, the achievement heralded by the newspapers everywhere, corporations at the east turned excess profits, taxable by the terms of the income tax act, into additional stock, the money, by this conversion having been held to be non-taxable. One concern is reported in this way to have disposed of $200,000,000 of such profits. The stock thus created becomes assessable in due time, but the excess profits, on which the tax—had the sum been permitted to have been so classed—would have been more than half of the total sum. The amendment suggested by the President is intended to cut off the possibility of such subterfuge. After dividend have been declared and expenses met, the aggregate of earnings left in the treasury of a corporation, represents excess profits. The aim of the government was to tax these profits. So far the aim has missed.

Some confusion has arisen because, quite apart from the amendment, a proposition comes from Secretary Mellon, that congress pass a law forbidding the issue of tax-free bonds. The amendment does not touch this subject even remotely. Bonds thus free of tax are those, for example, that were issued in war time to meet a sudden exigency. It is the belief of Mr. Mellon that no bond should be exempt. Almost assuredly, it will be the belief of people in general, that if small bond holders are not to be favored by exemption, that concerns handling hundreds of millions of excess profits, should not be allowed to camouflage these, and to be able to tell the assessor courtously, and with the sanction of the supreme court, to pass on.

ONLY CHAINS TO LOSE

In a gathering announced to be representative of the interests of labor, the communistic form of government was favored. Russia was named as a pattern. One delegate favoring the experiment said "We have nothing to lose but our chains." That his sentiment was applauded shows the depths of intellectual torpor to which prejudice may sink the mind.

In Russia the people have lost everything, including liberty of mind, body and soul. They have become enslaved by an oligarchy, compared with whose reign, the darkest of the reigns of czar, was an era of gladness and light. Yet it is not fair to say that the Russians have lost everything; rather, they have lost all but their chains, and they have acquired additional burdens and bonds.

A glance at the world shows that the United States is the land of greatest opportunity. Nobody here is chained. There is a complete liberty of which such types of malcontent as the communist are quick to take advantage. Their stupidity, as they gaze without seeing, is beyond comprehension. They would turn this land into a place of common poverty. They would fix its people at a level where the humblest now dwell, and out of which they may climb to some more desirable social or commercial stratum. But they would make the new and terrible condition permanent for all. They would have the government, now conducted constitutionally, overthrown, and in its place such a chaos as Russia, the universal desolation to be ruled by the same misguided devilry that holds Russia helpless, and has caused the Russians to be regarded no longer as a nation.

The American citizen who prates of his chains, is eaten by the unworthy ambition to confiscate the visible signs of prosperity, and live in idleness on the proceeds of industry. He may be a tramp, a hobo. He may be a communist, and attend conventions.

ONE BOY'S TEST

Recently a woman traveled 2000 miles to reach Pasadena because her boy was in jail there. She had borrowed the money for the journey, but had not enough for the return trip. She was taking the chance of being stranded penniless among strangers. The prisoner had been sentenced for drunkenness, the term being twenty days.

When the mother arrived she went to the chief of police and told her story. "My boy is a good boy," she said. "He was perhaps just a little wild, but he never did a harmful thing in his life." It is possible this judgment had been shaped more from mother-love than from material facts, and yet it was the one that the maternal instinct naturally must have formulated and cherished. The boy was freed from jail. Now the rest of the matter is up to him.

Even if a boy had been less good than his mother regarded him, such sacrifice as led this poor woman from Chicago to the Pacific coast to rescue him, and to express her affection for him, ought to make him eager to live up to her estimate. The mere circumstance that a lad away from home, in this day of bootlegging knavery, had once fallen under the influence of the temptation thrust upon him, does not necessarily mark him as depraved. He may have been nothing worse than foolish. Though he had traveled farther down the path than the mother believes, if there is a leaven of good in him, he will struggle from now on to make the most of it, and to be worthy of the devotion which is the mother's tribute to him.

For selling horoscopes a woman has just paid a fine of $500. The purchasers lose nothing but the sums they may have paid for the experience of being swindled. Nobody concerned is entitled to a shadow of sympathy. The findings of astrology often are expressed in a horoscope, which is the outline of individual fate. The fate depends upon the disposition of the stars at the time of birth. Needless to tell any intelligent person that astrology is as barren a fake as the machine sold for $5, but guaranteed to turn out bills of that denomination in endless procession.

Germans are urging a thirty-year peace covenant. Nations able to maintain amicable relations for that period could as well maintain such relations forever. On the other hand, if one among them cherished the ambition to make a mighty war, thirty years as a span of undisturbed preparation would be productive of effective results.

They sent a New York landlord to jail for sixty days because he had refused to keep his flats warm. The only defect in the penalty lies in the fact that the jail doubtless is reasonably heated. In southern California an episode of this kind would be impossible, yet sympathy does go forth to people who are obliged to live in New York flats.

THE ART OF SPENDING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Much has been written of the art of making money, for it is supposed to be quite difficult; but little has been written of the art of spending money, at which every man thinks he is an expert.

Dr. Frank Crane

Spending, however, to any one who has a conscience and a desire to help his fellow men, or to any one who does not wish to be a nuisance, is both difficult and dangerous.

There are ten men able to make big money to one man able to spend it satisfactorily.

Most of the damage done to the characters of men and women comes from the spenders, not only from the gay wastrels who frequent the "bright lights," but also from the soft-hearted and soft-headed rich men, who think that all they need do to make people happy is to write a check.

And more boys and girls have been ruined by having money to spend than by being compelled to earn money.

A man can pile up a great fortune by being extraordinarily endowed with the acquisitive instinct, and still be a flat failure in the way he uses that fortune. Jay Gould, for instance, was a money-making wizard, and immensely rich. He left his money to his family. But every property he controlled, with a few exceptions, has known bankruptcy, and there has been continuous litigation among his heirs.

A. T. Stewart, the great merchant of yesterday, left a lot of his money to establish a working girls' hotel in New York. The girls would not go to his hotel, and it became the Park Avenue hotel of today.

Russell Sage left about eight million dollars, some of which was used for forming a model residential community, which is now in the hands of a real estate company.

The model homes for London's workers, which were established by George A. Peabody, a great merchant of America and England, did little or no good.

John D. Rockefeller has been a little more successful in distributing his fortune, as the institutions he established contribute much to human welfare. The libraries established by Andrew Carnegie, the steel king, have also been beneficial.

Henry Ford's idea of using his money is to give employment to a large number of people, and this perhaps is a plan which it would be difficult to criticize.

Taking a general view of the combined experience of the rich men of the world, one can hardly resist the conclusion that the most good they did was in making their money, and that they have rarely been successful in getting rid of it, either during their lifetime or after their death.

One notion that every man should put out of his head is that when he becomes rich he is going to do a deal of good. For if he is ever going to do good, he must do it in the process of becoming rich. If he treats all men fairly, if he pays good wages, if he is just and generous, then the process of amassing his own fortune will be also beneficial to every one with whom he comes in contact.

But the idea that he need have no conscience in making his money, but can get his pile unscrupulously, and then square himself with the world by devoting it to charity, is thoroughly mediaeval, unscientific and impractical.

Little by little, the world is learning that the place for ethics is in business, and not AFTER business.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A man had a house.
That stood in a thicket.
A thicket of trees and shrubbery and limbs and branches and creepers and vines and all that.

And the thicket had been there a long time.
And all the time it grew denser.

It grew so dense after while that the house was in darkness all day.

For the sunlight could not get through.
And being dark all the time the place was damp and dismal and mouldy.

It smelled swampy.
And the mould gathered on the walls and bats and things flew about.

Still the thicket grew.
For the man had been reared in the thicket before it grew dense.

And he felt that the limbs and vines and creepers and things were a part of the place.
He feared to cut them down.

He felt it would be a lack of fidelity to the old place.

Just as people are reared in a certain atmosphere of thinking.
And they fear to make a change.

To cut down any of the creepers or branches.
Lest they be considered unfaithful.

And they let the thicket grow thicker.
Even though it shuts out the light.

So the man continued to live in his house.
And the thicket grew thicker.

And even the second story of his house was shaded.
All the day it was without sunlight.

And the second story was as damp and mouldy as the first.

Songs of the Poets

"If I Should Die Tonight"—By Ben King (1857—)

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and say, Weeping and heartick o'er my lifeless clay—
If I should die tonight,

And you should come in deepest grief and woe—
And say: "Here's that ten dollars that I owe,"
I might arise in my large white cravat,
And say, "What's that?"

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel,

I say, if I should die tonight
And you should come to me, and there and then Just even hint of paying me that ten,
I might arise the while,
But I'd drop dead again.

THEY MAKE SURE IN KANSAS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Merry little moron mixup the late election in the sunflower state.

As we know, William Allen White had been stirring up the animals in and around Kansas, in the name of free speech; and for many moons the dust arising from the industrial court controversy has been alighting thick on the Kansas prairies. Maybe it got into the brain cells of the voters, for here is what they did election day.

They voted in a democratic governor, pledged to repeal the industrial court law.
Then, to help (?) him they voted in a republican legislature, pledged to sustain the law.

How will the law fare?
Democracy may be all right in theory—I believe it is—but it works out in strange and wonderous fashion when election time rolls round. Some years ago when we Californians had 47-odd constitutional amendments to vote on at one election, a neighbor of mine voted yes and no on every one of them. She gave in explanation of her action a statement to the effect that she was in doubt in regard to many and wanted to be certain she voted right.

The average citizen's idea of democracy appears to be to elect a strong man at the head of affairs and then a stronger one or a collection to keep him from doing too much. It works out that he is prevented very effectively from doing anything.

In punishment for this they beat him next time.

No wonder politicians become cowards or slavers or both. Why wouldn't they?

Checks and balances may sound good, but if you check too much and balance too well you'll attain a static condition that is good for nothing.

A democratic president to keep a republican congress from running hog wild, a republican president to keep a democratic congress from talking the dome off the capitol may gratify the sense of security that moved the voters to elect them; but it will be much a blue moon before we get much action out of such arrangements.

All this is merely to call attention to eccentric voting of the free born American or the freely adopted ditto.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

COMMERCIAL OR MORAL?

[Buffalo Express]

Agitation in Great Britain to bar American films leads one to believe that commercial rivalry, more than the question of morals, is responsible for the movement. British critics roast photoplays from here on the ground that there are too many crime and marital woe plots, that they endanger the morals of little children who attend the picture palace and that they give an erroneous opinion of America.

At the same time British authors are sending us novel after novel packed with marriage failures and blood-thirsty detective yarns. It might be argued that little children, although they attend the movies, do not read these books, save the Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, which almost every child reads, but if little children are not the readers big children are and it is such simple-minded creatures that are more likely to be affected by pornography than the tots.

While much might be said against the production of plays and novels reeking with life's woes, such regrettable incidents happen every day and the film fan or book reader is certain to come across them sooner or later. As for the attack on American films, it is difficult to see wherein the American offends more than the Britisher. There probably would be little criticism if British films were as successful as those of American make.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Los Angeles papers blame "hysters" for the sorry conditions prevailing at the county jail. These chaps are lawyers of a sort. They have no standing with the profession, and none with the public. They represent a superfluous class, as useless as the cootie that haunts the average prison, and, as does the hysther, batters on the unfortunate inmates.

HENRY JAMES

The parasites take all the money they can get for legal services they never render. Hence when the client who has retained them comes to trial, he finds that he has neither counsel nor money to pay for counsel. The same malign entities are accused of smuggling saws and contraband drugs into the cells.

If the charges are true, the offenders should be expelled from the bar association of course; but not expelled from the jail, which is precisely where they belong.

Too bad that the home of John McGoarty burned, for his love of the place gleamed in much of his poetry and embellished his prose. To him the loss may seem greater than a similar loss might to the sternly unsentimental. Yet the loss of a home is bitter always. It means the destruction of cherished treasures, and the scarring of an environment that had evoked genuine affection.

Anyhow, the poet still has his hills, and his trees, and his good friends. He can sing of them and to them, meanwhile setting about the task of building anew in greater beauty.

You may burn a poet's house, but you can't shake his faith nor by hardship spoil the sweetness of his product.

Highwaymen have been so active of late that sawed-off shotguns are being issued to the Los Angeles police. The particular merit of the sawed-off weapon is that it scatters its load. About the only way to miss a target when using this gun is to shoot in the opposite direction.

It is the fond hope of citizens forced by circumstances to be out of night, that the new weapons will beat a lively leaden tattoo on the persons engaged in making the roads unsafe.

Many times a question has been raised as to the wisdom of requiring a jury to be unanimous in order to bring in a verdict.
There have been countless examples of the defeat of justice by a method that permits one under-headed juror, or one who has taken a bribe, to defy the judgment of eleven.

At present the subject is up for discussion again, and in all probability, just as usual, nothing will result from it. The reflection comes to mind, however, that with a verdict depending upon a majority, Burch, Obichain and Phillips, would have been convicted of first degree murder.

Chester Rowell has resigned or is about to resign as railroad commissioner. Officeholders do not do this as a rule. When a newspaper man accepts office, it is seldom that he can afford to let go. Mr. Rowell has plans that in importance transcend any duty that might be required of him in his present position. Besides, he is one of the few journalists who can afford to let go.

Turkey balked at considering the welfare of the Armenians.
The situation must have been a little awkward for the Turks at the conference.

Armenia formerly was a nation of some 6,000,000 souls. The Turks by sword and torch, by the dual agency of starvation and cold, cut the number down to about 150,000. Then he was asked to sit in council to discuss the future welfare of the remnant. He had spared only because unable to get within sword's length.

By the fact that he was ashamed to face the ordeal the Turk evinced possession of a trace of human quality. When a murderer is asked to gaze at the body of his victim, usually he flinches.

When the gift of a $2 pair of stockings from England requires the payment of $1.45 in duty, it must be admitted that for the nonce the tariff law takes on a ridiculous aspect.

There is not the slightest chance that the presence of the English-made stocking endangers, or even disadvantages American industry.

In dancing what she termed the "Funeral March of Bernhardt," Isadora Duncan was not only premature but presumptuous, and gave an exhibition of shockingly bad taste. It is not in the least surprising that later she sought to throw the blame upon a bottle of champagne.

It is possible that Bernhardt may live to dance the funeral march of the Duncan woman, and though handicapped by a wooden leg, it is to be hoped that the opportunity comes to her, and that she makes the essay.

The peace and goodwill of Christmas tide displayed reverse action at the little town of Trinidad in Colorado. There, as the result of a shooting affair, three persons were dead Christmas eve.
The only consolation is that not one of the lot had been an innocent bystander.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

For years Jimmy Kelley's failure has puzzled me. Now I believe I have the explanation. Jimmy never shot high enough. He never saw wide enough. He retailed his brains instead of wholesaling them.

"He was the most brilliant graduate in our class," said another man who had been permitted to emerge from scholastic servitude in Jimmy Kelley's year. "Every one prophesied big things for Jimmy."

It was not to be wondered at. No one could resist the big, good-looking, kindly kid. His honesty shone from his eyes. He danced and fought and sang and wrote poetry. Mothers diligently boosted their female offspring toward Jimmy, if they were able to catch up with the offspring in time to boost. Usually the girls had seen Jimmy first and kept right on looking at him. He filled the eye.

"He did make some money once," said the other man. "A patent pen-wiper or something."

That was about Jimmy's size, unfortunately. He was the sort of man who could have sold suspension bridges to watchmakers.
He could get attention easily and keep a buyer interested without an effort. His record was clean. One could go through his personal history with a magnet and not one small iron-filing of meanness would be gathered up. He could get credit from his banker on his unsecured note—

Up to $500 or so.

And that was all. The banker knew Jimmy to be honest. He was industrious and methodical. In planning a selling campaign he was a genius—

Just so long as the campaign was a little one, for the purpose of selling something small.

Jimmy, somehow, was afflicted with a chronic inability to see big things. He could sell eggs but not chicken ranches. He had always been that way. Contact with bigness seemed to frighten him. He had every quality needed for success except the ability to measure up.

Yet—once the customer is identified—it is actually easier to sell diamonds than to sell glass pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Haines and Miss Mamie Haines, 10 West Wilson, all registered voters, called at the Glendale Daily Press to register their protest against annexation to Los Angeles: "We are all solidly against annexation. We see no reason in such a proposition. If it comes to an election, which it should not, we shall be in the polls."

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hough of 303 North Maryland Ave.: "We are not in favor of annexing to Los Angeles, as we believe that Glendale is better off by itself.
We can get things done here much easier than if we were annexed to Los Angeles. The sewer problem is one which must be faced, but we believe that Glendale can solve this by itself if they get to work at it."

L. Denny, 119 South Verdugo: "I want to register my protest against annexation to Los Angeles. I see no reason for it and I know many against it. Let us stay where we are."

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rudel, 315 West Vine street:
We are decidedly opposed to annexation, as we feel that Glendale would have nothing to gain and everything to lose."

Mrs. Anna J. Moore, 529 East Windsor road: "I do not see where Glendale would gain by annexing to Los Angeles and it might possibly lose by it. I am very much opposed to annexation."

VERDUGO WOODLAND SEWAGE PLANT REPORT

L. D. Fish Describes the Working of Plant in Detail

Mr. Fish, who for the past year has been construction foreman for Glendale, will leave the employ of the city today. During his employment here Mr. Fish has supervised the job of constructing the sewage plant for the Verdugo Woodlands district, all of the flood control work done this year, quite a lot of street work, and also the laying of the foundation of the public service warehouse, the steel work of which is now being placed.
It is understood that Mr. Fish will enter into the private contracting business.

BY L. D. FISH
To handle the subject of sewage and try to make clear the many different opinions from different authors and to handle the problem of sewage and its disposal is something that one cannot do justice to in a few words. Yet, I will try to explain in a simple method all the things that enter in on taking care of sewage at our Verdugo Woodlands plant.

The Verdugo Woodlands sewer plant is so constructed that the incoming sewage passes through a grit chamber which screens the sewage from all foreign or solid substances. These screens are easily accessible for frequent cleaning. The sewage then passes from the grit chamber through a few lengths of sewer pipes, reaching the disposal plant proper. Here it passes down an open flume over the center wall to the far end of the plant.

The plant is a box within a box and divided by a center wall through the complete length. The different walls are cut at proper places and fitted with gates, so that the entire can be divided into circulation channels; as the flow of sewage increases the capacity of the plant can be increased to meet its needs. At present it is divided into two separate units, each unit having a settling tank which is an inverted pyramid or cone shaped well about 12 1/2 feet deep.

The sewage enters the digestion chambers by way of an angle box which is so constructed that there can be four different diverse directions of flow given to the incoming sewage as may be desired. The sewage leaves the angle box and drops into the digestion chamber where it circulates until it reaches the end opposite where it came in. It then passes over a wall into the settling tank. The settling tank is constructed with a deep baffle wall just in front of where the sewage flows through the opening into the settling tank. This forces all sewage held in suspension to pass down or compels a more rapid degree of settling. On the side of settling tank, opposite this baffle wall, is a narrow baffle extending across settling tank in front of weir. This acts as a scum board, thereby allowing all water which passes over the weir on this side of the settling tank to be perfectly clear. The water passes from here by way of flumes to sump holes.

As we stated, this plant is constructed to cater to the aerobic bacteria. To do this, we have installed in the compressor house two air compressors which will feed the sewage with a quantity of fresh air. The bottom of the digestion chambers are constructed in a series of small pyramids, which create a number of troughs. In each trough there is fitted a pipe with connecting pipes to the compressors. The pipes in the trough is perforated on the bottom with little holes one thirty-second of an inch in diameter. These distribute fresh air or oxygen to the bacteria in the settling tanks there is an

This is a photograph of Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and her husband, Clarence Thompson, who were arrested in Chicago in the midst of a spiritualistic seance at the Masonic Temple. air lift pump connected to a trough which returns 25% of the sediment from the settling tank to the digestion chambers for re-digestion; and to prevent stagnation from inactivity in settling tank and to keep digestion chambers well seeded.
Tests are taken where the fluid passes over the aerated trough to settling tank and when the fluid becomes of a certain density, the sediment from settling tank is pumped to the aerated storage chamber. Here it is kept and aerated until such time as this chamber becomes filled. It is then pumped to a sump hole for drying and is of such density that from twenty-four to thirty-six hours is the longest time required to dry it. When dry, it can be hauled away and used for fertilizer and is odorless.

There is considerable difference found in the quality of various sewages according to the size of the sewage systems and particularly the time interval, which elapses from the flow of sewage from its point of origin to the outfall of the disposal works, but by frequent flushings, the sewage can always be kept in a fresh state both in the sewer lines and when it reaches the disposal works. The natural bacteria of the sewage starts action almost as soon as it enters the sewage system on its way to the disposal plant. Both the aerobic and anaerobic germs start their work, but that of the anaerobic thrives most readily in stagnant sewage, while the aerobic thrives in light air and while the sewage is in action. The anaerobic germ does work by putrefaction, which causes it to give off considerable offensive gases. On the other hand, the aerobic has none of these qualities and, forms nitric acid and de-nitrification, which attier digesting the sewage, still leaves it fresh and unoffensive in odor.

At our Verdugo plant we have arranged that when this sewage is emptied into the plant, the action which it has experienced along its flow down the sewer line is increased by aerating. We are using ninety cubic feet of air per minute at ten pounds pressure, agitating and aerating the sewage, which in itself does not allow it to stand idle and putrefy from the action of the anaerobic germs, which may be attacking it in a minority number. This plant when kept in action for a twenty-four hour period and taking care of capacity sewage should give no trouble along the lines of offensive odors and except for the very small amount of noise created by the compressors, one should never know that the plant was in the community.

VAUDEVILLE AND IMMENSE SCENES FILM AT THE GLENDALE

There will be five acts of exceptional merit comprising the big new vaudeville bill that is booked to open at the Glendale Theatre, Saturday, December 30, headlined by the Misses Arnet, Landon and Martyn, three sisters of renown, in "Musical Moments." Vyvyan and Kastner offer "Singing and Talking Comedy Character Impersonations." They are exceptionally clever er artists and their contributions are sure fire. Boston and Vaughn are described as "The International Cut-Ups in Comedy Hits." They are funmakers of the first water and their material is sure to please.
Long & Jackson will present "The Time Table." Here is another act that has been a favorite everywhere. Stanley & Galfini & Company offer "Shadow Smiles in Colors." This also is quaint in conception and entertainment appeal.

A family feud, born of greed and matured in tragedy, is the subject of a Fox picture described as intensely gripping in interest, which is scheduled to open an engagement at the Glendale Theatre tonight with the favorite artist, William Russell, as the star, and Irene Rich as the leading woman. The picture is entitled "Strength of the Pines," and deals with villainy in the dense forests of Oregon. Russell, an Easterner, penetrates the forest bent upon the rescue of a charming girl whom he had known as a child; and the adventure and perils he encounters furnish the powerfully dramatic action with which the photoplay is packed.

One of the most unique features of the season is "Shattered Idols," formerly titled, "A Bride of the Gods," that J. L. Frothingham production which opened at the T. D.
& L. theatre yesterday.

Immense in its scenic effects, spectacular in its big moments and teeming with heart interest, this adaptation from L. A. R. Wylie's novel, "A Daughter of Brahma," is in many ways unique. The story is laid in India, involving the suppression of a native insurrection and the rescue of a comely maiden who has been selected as the bride of the unknown deity cult worshippers.

Sunday Program
The remarkably high grade cast which supported Guy Bates Post in "The Masked Rider," the first Richard Walton Tully production, is surpassed in the quality of this distinguished star's company for "Omar the Tentmaker," next feature at the T. D. & L. theatre.

Determined to surround Post with the finest cast obtainable, Producer Tully and Director James Young spent many weeks combing the list of candidates for the various roles.

Former Postmaster-General Will Hays, as every one knows, is an advocate of the air mail. "Of course, it gets criticized," he said,
"and criticism is a good thing, but it can be run into the ground. I am reminded of the vaudeville producer who muttered as he read the press notices of his program,
"These critics are thorough, all right. They don't leave a turn undisturbed!"

"Malachi," asked Mr. Casel, "can your wife cook as well as your mother did?"
"She cannot," replied Malachi.
"But, my friend, I never mention it, for she can throw considerable better."

POSTOFFICE IS HUNTING FOR MANY PEOPLE

Trying to Find Owners of Hundreds of Packages Without St. Address

Postoffice officials are faced with a big problem in trying to locate several hundreds of residents to whom Christmas packages have been sent addressed merely "Glendale," with no street nor number. Clerks have been specially delegated to try and hunt them up by reference to telephone lists, the last Glendale city directory and the list which the office possesses. It would appear, however, that a good many residents have never called at the office to register their addresses. Therefore, if a letter or package fails to carry the street and number, there is no way of tracing its proper destination. If the search fails, there will be but one thing to do and that is to send back the parcels to the senders if they bear the name and address. Besides the packages, there are seemingly thousands of letters and cards imperfectly addressed. Citizens who have failed to register names and addresses at the postoffice should do so without delay if they wish to receive all their mail. Also, they should caution their correspondents about writing in the full address, since Glendale has ceased to be a village and is now a city of some 35,000 inhabitants.

He was an optimist and had just moved into a new home with his wife. "On the north of them dwell a gas company. Chemicals were made in the east. A glue factory perfumed the south. The west wafted weird soap-boiling effluvia. But, bless you, he was an optimist! "Of course, dear," he murmured, holding his nose, "it is a little trying sometimes. Still, there's an advantage in the arrangement. At least, we don't need to buy a weathercock to tell which way the wind's blowing!"

"Yes," said Professor Brown to his friends, "I cannot understand how people forget the ages of their children. I have no trouble. For instance, I was born 3,000 years after Socrates; my wife 1,800 years after the death of Tiberius Caesar; my son John 2,000 years after the entrance into Rome of Titus Sempronius Gracchus, and our Dora 1,500 years after the beginning of the Folk Wandering. It is perfectly simple, you see."

SPORT KINGS THAT KEPT CROWNS

By HENRY L. FARRELL United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—With the exception of golf and boxing, leaders in most sports remained in possession of their honors through 1922.

There was practically a new list of champions in football, but that is such a changeable game that many annual changes are forced by natural conditions.

Professional baseball retained most of its leading clubs and tennis had no important changes. In the college field, rowing and track and field, two major sports found the same powers in command.

Winning of the two major league pennants by New York clubs on successive years established a new record for baseball. The Giants, in winning their second successive world's championship, also accomplished a feat that hadn't been equalled in several years. Baltimore ran away with the International League pennant and won the "little world's series" from St. Paul, the pennant winners of the American Association.

Football had its greatest years and the outstanding sectional teams, if they are disputed as champions, were:

East—Princeton.
Middle west—Iowa and Michigan.
South—Vanderbilt.
Missouri valley—Nebraska.
Pacific coast—California.

Familiar faces were all found in familiar places after a most successful year of tennis. The list of champions below found only one change and that was because William T. Tilden did not defend his British title:

Davis cup champions—United States.
World's singles champion—William T. Tilden.
World's woman champion—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen.
American woman's champion—Mrs. Molla Mallory.
British singles champion—Gerald L. Patterson.

All the golf crowns changed hands during a spectacular and most interesting season which saw the rapid rise of young players and the decline of the "old guard." The close of the season found:

World's champion—Gene Sarazen.
British open champion—Walter Hagen.
American open champion—Gene Sarazen.
P. G. A. champion—Gene Sarazen.
Amateur champion—Jesse Sweetser.
Amateur woman champion—Miss Glenna Collett.

California won the national and the eastern intercollegiate track and field championship for the second time and the rowing eight of the United States Naval Academy won its third title.

Passage of Georges Carpentier, Johnny Buff and Gene Tunney as ring champions were unusual developments of the year in pugilism. Carpentier dropped all his titles when he was knocked out by Battling Siki; Johnny Buff lost his flyweight title to Pancho Villa and Harry Greb beat Gene Tunney for the light heavyweight title.

The present champions are:
World's heavyweight—Jack Dempsey.
European heavyweight—Battling Siki.
World's light heavyweight—Battling Siki.
American light heavyweight—Harry Greb.
World's middleweight—Johnny Wilson.
New York's world's middleweight—Mike O'Dowd.
World's welterweight—Mickey Walker.
World's lightweight—Benny Leonard.
World's junior welterweight—Pinkey Mitchell.
World's junior lightweight—Johnny Dundee.
World's featherweight—Johnny Kilbane.
New York's world's featherweight—Johnny Dundee.
World's bantamweight—Joe Lynch.
World's flyweight—Jimmy Wilde.
American flyweight—Pancho Villa.

The titles bestowed on Mike O'Dowd and Johnny Dundee are trick gifts of the New York boxing commission and Mitchell was elected to his crown by a public vote.

A story that dates to the eighteenth century is as follows: Dr. Johnson once met the village postman trudging along the dusty road on a summer afternoon. The postman observed that he had still a mile to walk just to deliver one newspaper.

"My goodness!" exclaimed the sympathetic doctor, "I'd never go all that distance for such a trifle. Why don't you send it by post?"

SOME MOTOR "KICKS" Advertising may not sell the car, but it's doggone hard to sell the car that isn't advertised.
